Warm Welcome from the Governor of Jeju, Korea

Dear All BPW Members,

On behalf of the Jeju Special Self-governing Province, it is my honor to be the candidate city to host 2014 BPWI Congress.

Jeju is gifted by natural beauty and mystical heritage being one of the most desirable resort islands in Korea as well as in the world. Jeju is also one of the best cities in Asia to host international meetings with world class infrastructure and successful record of hosting prestigious congresses.

Most of all, superiority of Jeju women is the second to none source of pride.

Jeju women are participating in various economic activities to the degree of the highest level in Korea.

Jeju is the perfect place to hold the BPW International Congress in 2014, and I assure you that 2014 Congress in Jeju, Korea will be the most successful Congress in BPW history. I look forward to meeting you all in 2014!

Yours Sincerely,

김태환

An Island of Women Where World Leaders Meet

The women of Jeju are well-known for their powerful spirit, and one of three elements that symbolize the island. Haenyeo (women sea divers) are famous for their superb ability to overcome impoverished circumstances. The first woman CEO in Korea, Kim Man Deok, who was not only a successful merchant, but also practiced Noblesse Oblige through contributions and donations to the local society in the 18th Century, is another example of Jeju women's leadership.

The spirit of great women is still alive on the island and it instills Jeju and its people with cultural features that are unique to the region.

Jeju is also known as an ideal place for world summit meetings. Many world leaders have visited Jeju and acclaimed for beauty of the island as well as its spirit of peace.
